Looking For Love (Semper Fi, The Forever Faithful Series Book 2)

Synopsis

Micah Finn Rawlings has lived most of his life blind, sheltered, and craving adventure. Now, at twenty-two, an operation has given him his sight back and he's ready to take on the world. Well, sort of. His newly restored vision isn't exactly all that he'd hoped it would be, but he's definitely not going to let that stop him. Even if he does tend to trip over his own feet, have a slight problem with depth perception, and occasionally (okay, maybe a lot) get himself into situations that result in public embarrassment. Still, a few scrapes and bruises are a small price to pay for finally getting out there and living, and given that he has the best luck ever, even the most awkward moments tend to turn out pretty well in the end. Proof? Tripping and falling at the feet of the hottest man he's ever seen. A man who's definitely interested in him, too. Well, probably. Maybe? Actually, Micah has no experience whatsoever with such things and isn't really sure, but a boy can hope, right? HMC Zach Hunter, Medical Corps, U.S. Navy is many things. A patient man. An adrenaline junky. A bisexual serial dater going through an extended dry spell. Losing a few good men to an IED inspired a come-to-Jesus moment of clarity for Zach, and ever since, he's been looking for love. Dating any- and everyone who sparks his interest in the hope of finding something that, frankly, he's not entirely sure exists. At least, not for him. The only problem? There hasn't been a spark. At least, not the kind Zach's holding out for. He's not discouraged, though. Zach has no problem putting in some effort for the things that matter, and he knows that all good things are worth the wait. Besides, it's not like he can expect love to just fall at his feet, right? Looking For Love is a gay romance novel of approximately 107,000 words that contains a hot Navy medic who always does the right thing, a clumsy optimist who has more enthusiasm than experience, some sneaky references to classic movies from the eighties, tacos, tamales, and all the shades of blue. Oh, and yes. • Lots and lots of yes. • Every Stella Starling romance can be read as a standalone and takes place in the same interconnected, contemporary world. Looking For Love is the second book in the Semper Fi series, which is a spin off from At Last, The Beloved Series.

Can't say enough about this book. I loved the first book with Jake and Gabe but this one blew me away. Micah was so freakin adorable and perfect for Zach. Their story just jumped off the page. The connection between Micah and Zach had so many feels. You could just feel their connection from the start. They were just adorable together and holy smoking hotness. Could these two burn up the sheets. I had to laugh over Micah's "I really love sex." Micah's personality was so damn cute. I loved the way he rambled when he was nervous, that cute little way he always nibbled on his lip, and his dazzling smile that always melted Zach into a puddle. And how he always touched Zach's face so he could read him better than his eyes could. I actually teared up when Micah gave up something he loves so much but then again...that's our sweet Micah. So freakin cute. And Zach....he was PERFECT for Micah. Loved, loved, loved these two! Go get it! You won't be sorry. It's a whole lot of sweetness, hotness, cuteness and so much more.

To my eye this was the best at capturing that moment when eyes connect and instal-love happens. Usually, for me, the "insta" doesn't work, but Micah and Zach were pure cane sugar -- not artificial sweetener. Micah's unabashed honesty, and Zach's willingness to enjoy being happy inspite of his history made this such a happy read. Even knowing that this would be a HEA, and having read other books by this author, there was a fair amount of suspense for me because you know there will be some kind of challenge. While Micah and Zach were consistent in their characterizations throughout, and I thought I knew what to expect (because I have read a lot of books) I got to be surprised at how they handled themselves. The next time I want to dive in deep to a happy book with joyful characters, I will pick this up again.

Loved It!! It was so positive and Heartwarming. Even though Micah had a terrible thing happen to him when he was young, he never let it get him down, and just made it an adventure. And even as a young man, He didn't let the fact that he couldn't do some "natural" things well stop him, he just kept on living and enjoying life. I Loved his fierceness and the fact that he did not allow people to push him around yet had a inherent and positive...goodness in him. The-glass-half-full attitude was VERY well told in this story!! I LOVED his outlook on life. And Zach. What can I say about Zach. EVERY time "Baby" came out of his mouth, I wished it was me he was talking to. Best book in both series to date and one of the best I have read in a long time. Well done "Stella"!

I do so enjoy this author's characters. They always linger and I don't want to give them up after The End show on the last page. Lovely cotton candy story.

I really enjoyed reading about Micah and Zach. Loved watching their spark grow into something so much more than love. Very enjoyable!

Loved it! I can't remember when I laughed this much; felt an incredible heat or read a story where characters were mature enough not to stomp away in a huff.

This book is everything. I can't express how much I loved this book. They are not just words, they are all the words. All the words that kept me flying through the pages, reading, and reading and not stopping for anything. At the same time, however, I had to slow down, I had to savor every word. There is so much said between the lines. Between those words are so much more beautiful words. Micah and Zach are just, sigh, they are absolutely perfect. Zach is totally smitten from the moment he met Micah and how could he not. The joy and fun Micah is radiating is infectious. I had a perpetual smile on my face. His humor, his optimism, his joy for life. I love that boy as if he were my own. And Micah is equally head-over-heels with Zach and again how he could he not. The way he sees Micah, takes care of him, in a completely selfless way, only caring for Micah's happiness. And it is not only Micah he cares for, it is all the people around him. He only wants to help for better or for worse. And through the smiles and laughs came the tears. Tears for Zach, for what he had lost and for his inner struggles to do the best he can. I loved how Stella showed us the world through Micah's eyes. How it feels to be able to see again and how that affects his life. Not with big words but subtly woven into the story in a way that makes it even more realistic and poignant. The secondary characters are just as well-developed as Micah and Zach. Pippin (yes, she is one too) is the most precious dog you can imagine and Stella gets it when she describes how Micah's being able to see again has an impact on Pippin's life too. Neighbor Ana is a darling. Sam is the best best-friend Micah could have. The three M's, sometimes infuriating but oh so loving are the three women Micah can definitely not live without. Even Zach's ex. She is not the nicest person on the planet, to put it mildly. In a way, though, I can see why she did what she did although I don't approve of the way she did it. And Brody, broken Brody, so needs his own story. This book is pure gold. It might well be the best book Stella Starling has written. I had a kaleidoscope of butterflies in my heart all through the book and they will keep fluttering for a long time to come.
