History Of The World In Maps: The Rise And Fall Of Empires, Countries And Cities

Synopsis

From Babylonian tablets to Google Maps, the world has evolved rapidly, along with the ways in which we see it. In this time, cartography has not only kept pace with these changes, but has often driven them. Every map tells a story and this book tells the incredible history of our world through maps, and includes many famous examples of cartography, along with some that deserve to be better known. Key maps shown include Babylonian clay tablets, c.2300 BC and c.600 BC (some of the world's oldest surviving maps); Waldseemüller World Map, 1507 (the first map to use the name "America" for the New World), Waghenar chart, 1584 (a forerunner to modern nautical charts), Abel Buell map of North America, 1782 (the first map of the newly independent United States that was produced in America by an American), the Scramble for Africa, 1852/1898 (maps of new colonies being created); Ypres, 1918 (map of the aftermath of World War I); and Cuban Missile Crisis, 1962 (map used by President John F. Kennedy during the crisis).

"An absorbing browse as well as a valuable companion to history classes." —Library Journal

Times Atlases are the world's most prestigious and authoritative maps and atlases.

Great concept--to tell the history of the world with historic maps. Maps range in date from 1500 BC to 2014 and cover places from Babylon and Egypt to the United States and the Moon. The high resolution reproduction of the maps is impressive, and I could actually read the Gettysburg battle map and follow the battle sequence. The history behind the first map of the United States, published in 1784, was fun to read, especially the part about Benjamin Franklin.

ideal if you like maps.

Good condition except for the paper cover which is torn in places. I'm just out of hospital but plan to repair the cover with book-mending tape. It's a great book!

all is fine
