He has traveled to over six countries and numerous locations to draw mazes, but Chicago has been the primary subject matter for his maze art over the years. He has called many parts of Chicago home: Homewood, Pilsen, Uptown, Bridgeport, and others. Haussler has created work for television, print, live events, and even drew the world's largest art maze in 2015. This collection of 45 brand new Chicago mazes includes many of Haussler's favorite spots in the city.

Chicago artist Matthew Haussler has been drawing mazes as art since 2009. Matthew creates art for television, print, galleries, and live performance. Much of his art work is based on the places he visits during his travels both domestically and abroad. Matthew has lived in Chicago for 6 years, and he spends a lot of time visiting his favorite Chicago neighborhoods and biking around the beautiful city.
