Migration In The 21st Century: How Will Globalization And Climate Change Affect Migration And Settlement? (Investigating Human Migration & Settlement)

Synopsis

With fossil fuels and water running out, and temperatures and sea levels rising due to climate change, whole communities will need to move and resettle. How will human migrations on this scale be managed in our modern world? This forward-looking book explores these important issues as well as the solutions being put forward by politicians, experts, NGOs, and private citizens.

Customer Reviews

Grade 6-8 "This valuable series discusses migration within and between countries and touches upon many reasons for, and aspects and effects of, it. Migration covers such topics as globalization, climate change, and the history of human dispersal. Among the chapters in Cultural Landscapes are some on Cultural Superiority, Preservation, Protection, & Isolation, and Integration and Assimilation. Since so much is covered, the texts can be a little choppy at times, and the many accompanying photos are sometimes superfluous, but the multiple perspectives offered make the books worthwhile purchases despite the minor problems. The new 'Investigating Human Migration & Settlement' series provides Grade 6 with 48 pages each of detail on global migration patterns. Paul Challen's MIGRATION IN THE 21ST CENTURY, Natalie Hyde's POPULATION PATTERNS, Ceri Oeppen's HOPES, NEEDS, RIGHTS & LAWS, Marina Cohen's CHANGING CULTURAL LANDSCAPES, Robert Walker's PUSHES AND PULLS, and Sally Morgan's CHANGING PLANET each examine motivation, experience, and impact of human migration patterns around the world.
