Map Reading And Land Navigation: FM 3-25.26

Synopsis

The purpose of this field manual is to provide a standardized source document for Army-wide reference on map reading and land navigation. This manual applies to every soldier in the Army regardless of service branch, MOS, or rank. This manual also contains both doctrine and training guidance on these subjects. Part One addresses map reading and Part Two, land navigation. The appendixes include a list of exportable training materials, a matrix of land navigation tasks, an introduction to orienteering, and a discussion of several devices that can assist the soldier in land navigation.

Customer Reviews

Very well done but you can download for free. I learned that after the purchase. Having the hard copy is still worth the cost.

A great focus for family time. Helps youngsters orient and find their position within the neighborhood. A valuable instruction that will last a lifetime for every young person.

Packed with a lot of map reading know how with a military slant. More than what I needed but a nice military publication to have and you can learn what they learn. Good to have for reference and to refresh certain parts as needed.

Just like the one from the Army. Great manual to teach anyone land navigation with a map and compass. Get the protractor and a Silva compass that has the ability to set declination, and you can be out in the woods in less than a day (if you apply yourself). Start out with easy to find terrain features, natural or man made, i.e. a tower, etc. Great book to teach Scouts, etc. Spent 22 years in the Army, and this is the foundation to learn and navigate in any terrain. Another good investment would be the Ranger pace count beads, look for my review on them.

very useful for learning or refreshing your land nav (orienteering) skills.

Went through the course - similar - when in USMC; this is a great read.

Great manual, same one I learned from in the Military. This is the reference book to have.

Nice reading
