Fresh Eyes On Panama

Synopsis

One day my husband approached me with the idea of retiring early, if we could find a place to live comfortably on his pension. My first thought was "stop working now or work another fifteen years?" "Where we going and when are we leaving?" After much research and one exploratory trip to visit the country, Panamá seemed like the right choice for us. It offers the world's best retirement program, perfect year-round temperatures, top-notch healthcare and affordable living. We read everything we could find on Panamá, began studying Spanish and thought we were ready. Some of the information was inaccurate or outdated and others painted an idealistic picture. Someone had to tell the truth of what it's really like to move one's whole life to another country. Who better than someone that's been there, done it and living the life everyday? In order to help our friends and family follow along on our crazy adventure, I began to write about our everyday life here. Moving to another country is not for everyone but for those willing to take the plunge, the rewards are endless. It's opened our eyes to a simpler way of life as we've come to know the people and the culture. We invite you to follow along on our journey of adventure in this beautiful country we now call home. Many talk about retiring abroad, some actually do it, and still others live vicariously through us. Retirement is that time of life when we stop making money and start making memories. My partner in adventure and I are making new memories daily as we live the dream of early retirement in Panamá.
